Preface to the First Edition

There are some books on this subject but none of them offers a solution to the problem of selection of potency. They simply contain different views expressed by eminent Homoeopaths. Several of my friends had been writing to me asking me to put in a book form the basic norms which a student of Homoeopathy should know.

Being encouraged by my friends, I wrote earlier an article 'A Practical Solution to Potency Problem' which was published in April, 1973 in the 'Torch of Homoeopathy', a quarterly journal published by the Rajasthan Homoeopathy Association, Jaipur. The same article was published in the 'Homoeopathy' a monthly journal published by the Indian Institute of Homoeopathy, Kumbakonam. I have revised this article and after incorporating some valuable information, it is being put in a book form.

This booklet, which I offer to the public, is not the result of my experience alone. I have subscribed to and compiled the views of various authorities of Homoeopathy. I am grateful to Shri A.C. Biswas who has given his full co-operation in typing out the manuscript prepared from different pages of my note books.

I will receive with thanks and make use of any hints that may be given to me for the improvement of this book.

Preface to the Third Edition

After the publication of the first edition; the book became so popular that the limited copies printed became soon out of stock. The 2nd edition of the book was brought out in 1980 after many additions and improvements. The 3rd edition which I am now presenting before the readers in thoroughly revised and enlarged. Besides incorporating number of medicines a new topic representing different methods of potentisation has also been added. I hope that the new edition will be more useful to the profession.

Preface to the Fourth Edition

This was the first book written by Dr. Y.R.Agrawal, before this; he wrote several articles for the reputed journals. He took this book to different publishers who in turn refused to publish this study, so he published it in the name of M/s. Vijay Publications despite of financial pressure, then started his never ending journey. In this way he wrote twenty two books and a journal by the name 'Advent of Homoeopathy', was established in 1984, his books were marked as 'master pieces' by eminent critics.

I am proud to say that all most in all countries of the world, our books are sent, and the homoeopathic softwares are using our books as the reference; One may find the name of our books in the Websites of different book sellers in the world.

When he was writing his first book, I never thought that his book will bring such a great publicity to Vijay Publications.

The much awaited edition of this book has had been thoroughly revised by Dr. Agrawal during his life time by incorporating more study material in his master copy, and I after consulting the homoeopathic experts; have incorporated here.

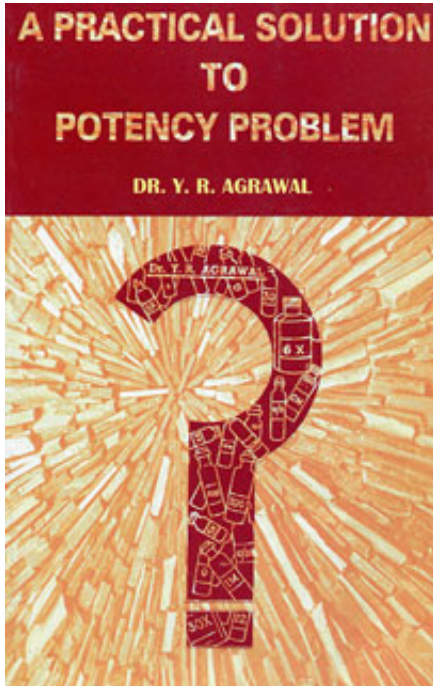

More guide lines on the theory of potentization, on selection of right potency, rules for selecting high, low and medium potency; alongwith 50 more medicines are included.

With this book, a new research work Wheat Grass - A potential Polycrest Remedy, by Dr. Sudershan Bhatti is also being released.

I hope that both the books will be more useful to the profession. I will receive with thanks and make use of any hints that may be given to me for the improvement of this book.
