Introduction

On August 9, 1945 the plutonium bomb was dropped on Nagasaki. This bomb caused the end of World War II. The city of Nagasaki was largely destroyed and a large percentage of the population was killed. Close to the impact site, a kaki tree (Diospyros kaki) survived this inferno. It proved to be resistant to the plutonium bomb that wiped out all other life. Its survival power makes this tree the World Tree. A Japanese artist, Tatsuo Miyajima, is planting seedlings of the kaki tree as a symbol of survival and growth in an unlikely spot (the Kaki tree project). Nature has a power to survive, even when human influence seems to make that impossible. The kaki tree is a symbol of transforming the evil spirit (of war) into something better. It brings a message of peace- the World Tree. Seedlings of this tree are planted, e.g., in Italy, Brazil, the United States and Japan. In the summer of 2000 a seedling from the Nagasaki kaki tree was planted in the Botanical garden at Leiden University.

During 1995 a proving using a plutonium remedy was carried out under supervision of Jeremy Sherr. This remedy, in my view, is related to the Diospyros kaki Creveld remedy. Plutonium is the explosive element of the underworld (Pluto being, in classical mythology, the king of Hades). Diospyros kaki is a fruit tree, a gift from the Gods. It is related to both the Gods, the people and the underworld. Plutonium is a symbol of darkness and a powerful poison. Diospyros is a symbol of light and de-toxification. It is a symbol of life and survival.

Diospyros kaki is a species with effects that may help in case of complaints following radioactivity exposure. This is shown by its use in Chinese herbal medicine in case of tumours, loss of hair, internal haemorrhages and a lack of saliva secretion, to name some examples. The positive effect of the fruit in cases of leukaemia was recently proven. Besides, the tree promotes excretions. These characteristics helped the tree to survive the atomic blast.

The plutonium bomb was dropped on August 9, 1945. 55 years later, on August 13, 2000, I have collected material from the kaki tree in Nagasaki. VSM have prepared a homoeopathic remedy, using three parts of the tree: the root, the bark and the pulp of the ripe fruit.

Diospyros kaki Creveld is now made and sold by -Heel Belgium (Homeoden)(telephone +32 9 265 9565) at the following potencies: 30K, 200K, MK, 10MK and 50 MK.
