MASTURBATION, ITS PHYSICAL AND MENTAL EFFECTS

Masturbation is not a disease, but an act that if persisted in leads to a dirty, shiftless, worthless life and in extreme cases to imbecility or insanity. It is, as a rule, barring those inherited, the first sexual ill that afflicts humanity. The act, if we may judge by the books of Kraft-Ebling, Hammond and others, may be performed in a variety of ways, but the effect sought is the same—a pleasurable ejaculation of semen. It is always well for readers to understand the terms used, and that can best be accomplished by giving the roots of the word.

"Masturbation" is derived from two Greek words, manus, meaning, in English, "hand" and stupro, "I ravish". So, literally, it is ravishing or raping one's self with the hand or in some other unnatural manner.

"Spermatorrhoea" is from sperma, "seed" and to "sow," and rheo, to "flow," or "I flow". Meaning, as now used, an involuntary emission of the seminal fluid.

Boys may discover how to masturbate, or it may be taught them by other boys, or worse, by men, or even women. The act gives them a few moments of what seems to be ecstatic delight, and some of them resort to it as often as possible at first. They do not know that it is a sin against God, the human race and their own physical welfare. Such boys are to be pitied rather than blamed. There are very few adults indeed who have not passed, to some extent, through this unholy fire, and fortunate are they who, by means of a plain, sensible book, or through the words of some friend, have been warned of the dangers, the final disgust and ruin that attend the practice when it degenerates into unchecked licence.

In too many families the subject of the sexual organs is regarded as a topic that must never be mentioned, and children are left in entire ignorance only to be enlightened, too often, by bitter experience. If parents or guardians cannot, or will not, instruct the young, and warn them of the dangers that beset them from this source, at least let them procure a book that plainly treats of such matters and place it in the hands of the young at the proper time, for forewarned is forearmed. Should any young person read this book, let him know that if he persists in the habit of masturbation the result will be that he will gradually become weak, nervous and sallow, with a face full of pimples, sunken eyes, with dark rings about them; he will become bashful, timid and, in extreme cases, the end will be impotence, imbecility and death. Not many go to that extreme, but the actual number is not small. It is said that about three per cent, of the inmates of

BALANITIS

This disease, or condition, is an inflammation of the glans penis. There may be a slight inflammation behind the corona of the glans and an accumulation or slight flow of yellowish, nasty, mucus-like discharge. As a rule, this is the result of uncleanliness, and soap and warm water is the best cure, but sometimes medicines are needed. Among these Nitric acid is useful when there is itching and burning of the foreskin and vesicles, which may scab. Pulsatilla is useful when, in spite of cleanliness, this yellowish secretion constantly forms under the skin of penis.

When there are cauliflower growths, condylomata, warty excrescences or any growth of this nature present Thuja is the remedy.

MATERIA MEDICA

ACONITE

Patient is restless, anxious, feverish. Fear; of death. Timid. Fullness and heaviness in forehead. Hard, swollen eyelids. Lips and mouth dry and parched. Prepuce swollen and inflamed. Frequent desire to urinate. Urine scanty and hot. Retention of urine, especially after exposure to dry cold air. (All ailments brought on by exposure to cold, especially to dry, cold winds, require this remedy.) Burning in bladder. Skin hot and dry. Inflamed testicles when caused by cold. Bruised pain in testicles. Menses suppressed from cold. Chill, followed by fever (beginning of colds). Sudden and acute inflammation. Fever, with painful urging to urinate. In gonorrhoea this remedy taken frequently will allay the fever and inflammation, though it will not check the discharge. Restlessness and sleeplessness of old age.

AESCULUS

The general action of Aesculus is on the lower bowel, back, hips and liver, and it is especially indicated in persons with tendency to haemorrhoids. Back and hips aching and painful; liver and portal
