Aluminium silicata

Massimo's personal ideas about the case:- the matter of identity is very important. She is in a 'fusional' state. This is a fundamental part of our life in all mammals. It's one of the main reason why mammals are mammals. Many other animals don't have this stage at all to them, their mother does not exist in the same way. Even though it appears that there are two different individuals, one of them is completely fused with the other one. A baby may be out of the womb, but it is as dependent as if it was inside. Humans are interesting because mammals that are easy victims of predators need to be able to walk, run and escape as soon as possible. A human baby can't survive on its own for a long time<sup>54</sup>. When this fusional state is prolonged, it becomes pathological.

The symptoms of several aluminium salts are a clear demonstration of this kind of state. Aluminium cannot become detached from his mother. If the mother is not alive, it will be projected onto someone else who plays the same role.

Very often you don't find these kind of bursting symptoms in Aluminium salts but more aggressive symptoms in other directions - they are mostly self-reverted, like in the case of Silica.

Specifically in the case of Aluminium siicata<sup>55</sup> you have the symptoms of fear of blood and fear of cutting and many other symptoms like a fear of committing a crime, delusions of doing something wrong, etc. In Aluminium there is a strong desire of being able to express, to act your own identity with a clear feeling that you are still in such a strong, deep fusional state that it is impossible for you to cut this umbilical cord. It's a real symbiosis. The feeling is that if they cut this connection, it's not only a crime but it's like cutting the self. It's like cutting off the support and cutting off something that makes them able to survive.

It's a symbol of the Siamese twins. As if these two people are living with only one heart or one liver. The idea is that if they cut this, they will finally get rid of this kind of mother, but they will die as well.

Aluminium always has to do with someone in a deep fusional state, going on for years with this kind of persecutor (usually the mother) and they cannot get rid of this feeling inside that if they cut the relationship, they will die as well.

In Aluminium siicata this problem is much stronger. And it has to do with a support that is completely unreliable. They move on through life with a very heavy burden on the shoulders that it is not possible at all to get rid of.

<sup>54</sup>This is slightly different now that we can feed a baby with artificial milk.
