PREFACE

As the modern medical science is developing faster, so also are the specialities. In olden times there were three broad divisions of therapy—medical, surgical and gynaecological. Now there are various surgical specialities but we find that even in the medical side there are specialised departments. As a result very often a patient is referred from one specialist to another, often without any benefit.

But homoeopathy is able to succeed in many specialised departments of medicine by merely applying a standard principle and following a particular method of treatment.

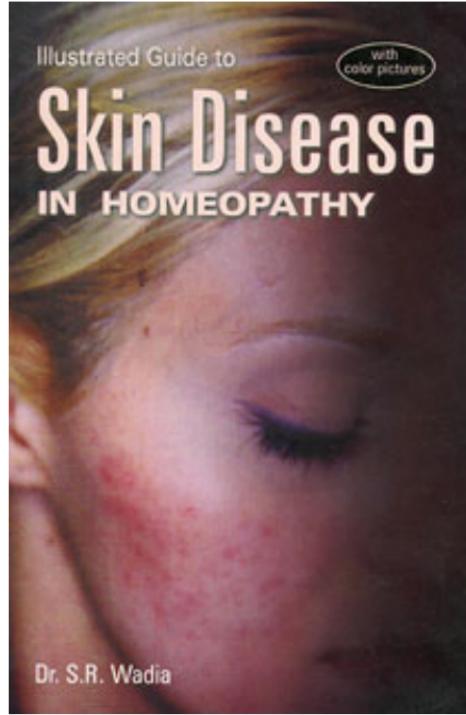

In order to show to the medical world and the public the new technique of treatment of skin disease by homoeopathy I have made this humble attempt. This shows that 'skin diseases' are mere reflections of some deep seated diseases in the human being and that they can be treated very simply by treating the patient as a whole on homoeopathic lines.

I have described very few cases but scores of 'diseases' of the skin like urticaria, acne, callosities (corns), ringworm, psoriasis, dandruff, alopecia, various discolourations of skin etc. can also be treated in this very simple manner.

By the grace of God and due to good response from the profession and the public, this revised edition of this booklet is brought out. I have added some more cases which did not respond to the usual treatment. Some pictures before and after treatment speak for themselves.
